

Research Update:

West Caldwell Township, NJ Series 2026 Bond Anticipation Notes Rated 'SP-1+'

August 10, 2026

Overview

- S&P Global Ratings assigned its 'SP-1+' short-term rating to West Caldwell Township, New Jersey's approximately $24.5 million series 2026 bond anticipation notes (BANs).
- At the same time, S&P Global Ratings affirmed its 'SP-1+' short-term rating on the township's existing BANs.
- S&P Global Ratings also affirmed its 'AA+' long-term rating on the township's general obligation (GO) debt.
- The outlook on the long-term rating is stable.

Rationale

Security

West Caldwell's full faith and credit pledge secures the notes.

The short-term rating reflects our criteria for evaluating and rating BANs. The township maintains a very strong capacity to make principal and interest payments when the BANs come due. We view West Caldwell's market risk profile as low because the township has strong legal authority to issue long-term debt to take out the BANs and because it is a frequent debt issuer that regularly provides ongoing disclosure to market participants.

Officials intend to use series 2026 BAN proceeds to renew existing BANs and fund various capital projects.

Credit highlights

The rating reflects our view of West Caldwell's strong reserve position, which it has maintained over the past few years through balanced operations. We expect the township's wealthy tax base, high incomes, realistic budget assumptions, and levy cap bank flexibility will continue to support balanced financial performance. At the same time, these strengths are offset by the township's high debt and retirement liabilities on a per-capita basis and above-average fixed costs, which currently constrain credit quality.

We expect West Caldwell's operations will remain balanced, enabling it to maintain the sizable reserve position. The township ended fiscal 2025 with a nearly breakeven operating result (0.1% surplus). Significant expenditure savings to budget on group health insurance, utilities, and various operating costs offset budgeted use of fund balance and under budget interest income. The adopted fiscal 2026 budget totals $27.0 million (4.7% increase) and raises the tax levy by 7.4% to fund overall expenditure growth. Officials indicate budget to actuals are tracking favorably and expect to end the year with at least balanced results. At a minimum, the township expects to replenish the $2.3 million in the fund balance that it appropriated for the fiscal 2025 budget. Management does not anticipate any significant changes to the budget over the next couple of years, and West Caldwell maintains $991,190 in levy cap bank that affords it some revenue-raising flexibility to address any rising costs over the next few years. While the township's reserves significantly exceed its $3 million to $5 million informal target, West Caldwell does not have any plans to draw down on reserves and expects they will remain at about current levels.

With this issuance, West Caldwell will have about $51.9 million in total direct debt, with some of this debt consisting of self-supported utility debt. The township plans to issue about $3 million in additional debt annually, although we don't expect this will have a material effect on its debt burden. However, we expect fixed costs, which include pension and other postemployment benefit (OPEB) costs, will remain a long-term credit pressure due to large liabilities relative to the budget and on a per-capita basis, and costs that could escalate due to low funded ratios for its retirement plans.

The rating further reflects the following factors:

- West Caldwell is a small, wealthy township about 25 miles west of New York City, which provides it with direct access to employment opportunities throughout the greater North New Jersey and New York City regions. There are a few developments underway in the township, including new residential complexes and redevelopment of an old warehouse. The township expects these and other projects will contribute to tax base growth. The township's high incomes significantly exceed those of other Essex County communities and the U.S. average.
- We expect historically stable budgetary performance will continue in fiscal 2026, and has resulted in continued reserve improvement supported by a strong revenue base and conservative budgeting practices. The township's reserve levels are also commensurate with those of similarly rated peers. The township's current fund revenues are primarily derived from property taxes, which make up about 71% of total revenue. The stronger-than-typical fiscal 2024 operating results were enhanced by one-time nonrecurring revenue of about $1 million from the sale of a township property to support a Shoprite project.
- Conservative and forward-looking budgeting practices include monthly reporting of budget-to-actual results, a multiyear revenue and expenditure forecast, and a six-year capital improvement plan. The township also has a formal investment policy and an informal reserve policy of maintaining a fund balance of $3 million to $5 million after the appropriation of the fund balance in the budget. West Caldwell has taken steps to mitigate cyber risk but does not have a formal debt policy.
- The township has high fixed costs and large retirement liabilities; combined pension and OPEB liabilities total about $69 million as of fiscal 2025 for participating pension plans, administered by New Jersey, which could lead to budget pressure. For more, see "Pension Spotlight: New Jersey," October 9, 2025.

- Although physical risks are relevant for the local government sector, we consider West Caldwell’s exposure to nature hazards low compared with that of national peers and in a nominal sense; therefore it is not a material factor in our credit analysis.
- For more information on our institutional framework assessment for New Jersey municipalities, see "Institutional Framework Assessment: New Jersey Governments," Sept. 9, 2024.

Outlook

The stable outlook reflects S&P Global Ratings' view that West Caldwell’s strong local economy, healthy reserves, and balanced operating performance will continue over the next couple of years.

Downside scenario

We could lower the rating if the township’s finances were pressured, whether due to increasing long-term liability costs or if management cannot replenish appropriated reserves, resulting in a substantial decrease in available reserves.

Upside scenario

We could raise the rating if debt, retirement liabilities, and associated costs were to decrease and management were to maintain reserves at least at current levels through balanced operations. Implementation of more formalized financial management policies would also be a consideration for a higher rating.

The ratings appearing below the new issues represent an aggregation of debt issues (ASID) associated with related maturities. The maturities similarly reflect our opinion about the creditworthiness of the U.S. Public Finance obligor's legal pledge for payment of the financial obligation. Nevertheless, these maturities may have different credit ratings than the rating presented next to the ASID depending on whether or not additional legal pledge(s) support the specific maturity's payment obligation, such as credit enhancement, as a result of defeasance, or other factors.
